About Illawong Lodge

People of all ages and backgrounds, including children and teenagers, are warmly encouraged to enjoy Illawong and participate in all its activities – and have done so in safety for over 60 years. Illawong Ski Tourers is known for its culture of providing a child-friendly environment. Illawong Lodge is located several kilometres from the nearest road and services, and in winter is typically inaccessible except by cross country skiing or snowshoeing. Activities undertaken from Illawong may have inherent dangers. Parties in residence may include people known and unknown, sharing a small environment including the same bunkroom, bathroom and living quarters between up to 8 people. Everyone needs to share this simple, small accommodation congenially with other residents during their stay, sometimes in difficult conditions.

Please consult the Illawong web site at www.illawong.asn.au for more information about Illawong Lodge, its location and its facilities.

Adults responsible for children staying at Illawong should satisfy themselves that the access and living conditions are suitable.

Although Illawong is not considered an employer, we use the child-related employment guidelines provided by the NSW Commission for Children and Young People to manage child protection. All residents over the age of 18 are requested to sign a declaration that they are not prohibited by law from working with children, and this is considered when people under 18 will be resident in the lodge.
